Go; your faith made you well

The passage dealing with the healing of blind Bartimaeus is one of the most animated in the Gospel. It could easily be adapted by the media.

The evangelist has recorded this healing story to illustrate how Bartimaeus became a follower of Jesus. At the beginning, he desired to meet Jesus and shouted out: Jesus, son of David, have mercy on me! In other words, pay attention to me and grant my request. Though people in the crowd tried in vain to silence him, Bartimaeus was so loud that Jesus heard his cries and commanded them to clear a passage for him.

Then Jesus asks Bartimaeus to specify his request: What do you want me to do for you? Bartimaeus' response: Rabbouni, (my teacher), let me see again. Jesus' response acknowledged Bartimaeus' deep faith. Christ recognized the intensity of this blind man who continued to shout out to him. Christ replied: "Go, your faith has made you well." The recovery of sight and recognition of the blind man's faith indicated that his salvation involved much more than mere physical healing. Bartimaeus was cured, became a disciple and followed Jesus.

These passages enable us to see that, even before his cure, Bartimaeus believed in Christ and was a potential disciple. The passage ends with this description of this disciple's actions: Immediately the man regained his sight and followed Jesus. Jesus had extended the same invitation to the Twelve: "Come, follow me." When Bartimaeus expressed his request to Jesus, he called him Rabbouni, which translates as "My Teacher." There is also evidence of Bartimaeus' detachment since he threw off his cloak as he approached Jesus. This cloak was all that had to wear and according to the Law, it was returned that evening. Bartimaeus' complete detachment exemplified what is required of a disciple.

Just as happened with Bartimaeus, I ask the Lord to open my eyes so that I may discover how precious He is and respond to his invitation to follow him.
